

OUR WEEKLY FASHION LETTER

A TIMELY REVIEW OF THE LATEST MODES (Special) By JUDIC CHOLLET

The up to date summer girl's wardrobe will contain a yachting costume, which, by the way, may be used on land as well as on sea. It is possible to purchase these suits ready made and in such good style that it is hardly worth while bothering about having them made to order. White serge is the best material for this gown, although mohair, cloth and brilliantine are used trimmed about the foot line with ruffles of gray satin ribbon. The bloused waist has incrustations of crocheted lace and shoulder and neck trimmings of the ruffled ribbon.

Torcheon lace is used on a number of the summer gowns. When embroidery is the principal feature of ornamentation on a dress valenciennes is the only lace associated with it, or perhaps cluny is chosen.

The new corsets are high in the bust, long on the hips and have gracefully curved waist lines. The director to some extent. Be sure and select a hard twisted piece of serge and have it sponged.

Smartest of the season's mannish shirts for women are those of silk and flannel which are in vogue for tennis. They are made in the most comfortable way, with loose open neck and half sleeves.

Mannish shirt waists are in again. The designs are quite simple, either fine box plaits or a few large ones not stitched, but well pressed. These run from the neck to the waist. Tucks are left for the dressier blouses. Bone buttons are used on them in place of pearl ones.

Colored gingham and linen shirt waists are very good style to wear with plain tailored suits. Plaid gingham in harmony with the gown colorings are very smart, also linen lawn with a dot of red or bright blue in it. The two new touches on these shirt waists are bone buttons and fluted ruffle down each side of the center plait.

The automobile hat illustrated is one of the newest models. It is a turban made of light tan straw. About the brim is draped a veil of double white chiffon caught at the sides with tan colored wings. The long ends cross in the back and knot about the throat and hang in long flowing ends.

Gun metal shades of gray will be very much worn in the fall, and black gowns promise to be popular. Indeed, there is every indication that suits will be in dark colors.

Shoulder capes matching the dress material are one of the old fashion revivals taken from the modes of the styles are pushing the bust up higher and converting the waist into the hour-glass size.

Plaid dummies are used for shirt waists and dresses. There is great variety in this material, the largest plaid being something less than two inches square and the smallest of cords set as close together as possible. Between these sizes are plaidings of every width, some made by single cords crossing others of a dozen cords to form a band. The plain spaces seem sheer in contrast.

The very simplicity of the coat illustrated is its charm. It is cut on the lines of a very full sack, which fits over the shoulders down to the figure line with perfect precision; from this point it falls with increasing fullness till the hem is reached. Shantung silk is the material used, trimmed with insertion appliques.

CHIC STYLES.

Pretty Belts and Parasols—Pumps. Cloth Bands on Thin Gowns.

Among the pretty belts is one of mauve suede embroidered in ribbon flowers.

Some of the most gorgeous parasols have shell and amber handles matching the amber hatpins.

There is a hint of the director to be seen on many costumes in revers and double capes.

The new pumps are low, but cut a trifle higher than last year's. They are more comfortable and have two holes, laced through with broad lacings. The heels are Spanish. Some are stitched at the toe and at the sides.

It is queer, but upon organdie and mousseline gowns are applied bands of cloth. These bands give the material weight and make more apparent their filmy beauty.

Frills and fluffs are scattered over all the thin summer frocks. Even on all over materials trimming is lavishly used.

The parasol pictured is of white silk, each gore fitted with a lace motif. The deep border is of lace overlaid with a latticed effect in green velvet ribbon. The stick is of whitewood with a crystal handle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

sixties. They are cut low in the neck, which is the only deviation from the original model.

Some of the summer lounging robes are luxurious creations of chiffon, trimmed with yards and yards of valenciennes lace and elaborate hand embroideries.

Japanese crapes for kimonos and dressing sacks have cherry blossoms, dragons, quaint little Japanese maidens and butterflies scattered over them in a confusion of gay colors with a perfect disregard of proportions.

The thin woman should remember that checks make her look stout and that full skirts, wide belts, large hats, vertical trimmings and materials with glaze surfaces are other mediums that add to size.

Gray chiffon is the material used for the pretty gown pictured. The full skirt has a graceful little train and is
